Date: March 14, 2005
Estimated Project Cost: 29,785.00
Brief summary of the project:

This proposal has been submitted a number of times and has never been funded. The University purchased a state of the art Avid Computer Editing System that is now six years old and needs to be upgraded. It has been limping along for quite a while not capable of the basic need to export films to tape or DVD. This project will bring our out dated Avid system up to date. Avid is the industry standard and the most recognized nonlinear media editor in the world. This system helps students learn and pursue the art and science of media manipulation. Students will get experience on the most widely accepted and used platform in the world. The Avid system is a big asset for ASU.
